

Study 3: Acts 1 - 8

Acts has a unique place in the New Testament writings. It provides an historical context for much of the rest of the New Testament, and enables us to put the epistles into context. We also learn much about how the New Testament church functioned in reaching out to the world with the gospel of Christ.

Notes for study 3: Acts 1 - 8

Introduction

Acts provides a “history” book in the New Testament, although that is not primarily what it is. It is the second half of Luke’s narrative concerning Jesus and the church. In his gospel, Luke tells us about the beginning of the gospel “...all that Jesus began to do and to teach until the day He was taken up...” (Acts 1:1-2). In Acts he tells us about the consequential action of the Holy Spirit in the establishment and growth of the church as it spread “...in Jerusalem, Judea and Samaria, and into all the world...” (Acts 1:8). In fact, this verse summarises what Acts is about:

- The first few chapters deal with the work in Jerusalem.
- The stoning of Stephen (chapter 7) sets a turning point in the book, and the gospel goes to Samaria (chapter 8).
- From chapter 13 onwards, we see the ministry to the rest of the world.

There are some key events that place a “peg in the sand” where we know the specific times (or even the approximate times) of the events. These help us to unravel the chronology of Acts, and include:

- Pentecost,
- Aretas, King of Damascus,
- The death of Herod,
- The expulsion of the Jews from Rome,
- Gallio in Achaia,
- Festus the Governor of Judea.

Specific duration’s mentioned in the book also help us piece things together, such as the time that Paul spent working with the churches in Antioch, and at Corinth, and we can “work out” (or take an educated guess) at the length of time of some of the journeys, and how long Paul might have stayed in some of the cities. And there is the information that we get from Paul’s letters that also help us fill in some of the details. We can piece all of this evidence together, and have a pretty good picture of the time line and chronology of the events.

As we take a fast-paced trip through the book, we want to note three fundamental questions:

1. The Timing – when did the events occur, and how do we know?
2. The Cast – Who are the main characters in the chapter?
3. The Plot – What are the main events described in the chapter.

These three things will help with our fundamental understanding of not only the book of Acts, but also as we piece the rest of the New Testament together.

Date and Timing

Acts begins in AD33, and the date of writing is generally placed around 63 AD, and covers the period until near the end of Paul’s first imprisonment in Rome. The account closes with no details of the outcome of Paul’s imprisonment, his trials, and his subsequent release. Further, the events associated with the destruction of Jerusalem began around AD 67 or 68 and took 3 years. With such an enormous imposition on the christians in Jerusalem and the effect of the spread of christianity, it would be most unlikely that the book was written after AD 70 and did not mention these events. Importantly, the description of Paul’s arrest in Jerusalem, trials and imprisonments take up the last quarter of the book, culminating in his house arrest in Rome. However, the book closes without any form of disclosure as to what happened to Paul – what was the outcome? This suggests that it was written at the time when Paul’s imminent release had not yet taken place.

The treatise closes when the mission statement of 1:8 has been completed, and the story of the gospel going into all the world has been described.

The major themes

The major theme of the book is the spread of the gospel throughout the “then-known” world. But equally, the book is also a history of the establishment and growth of the church. Jesus said in Mt 16 that “...I will build my church...” (future tense). In Acts chapter 2, we see that promise come to fruition, and then the church being established throughout the world as the gospel is spread. We see problems in the church develop and being dealt with, governance for the church put into place, and the church at work in the various communities where it was founded.

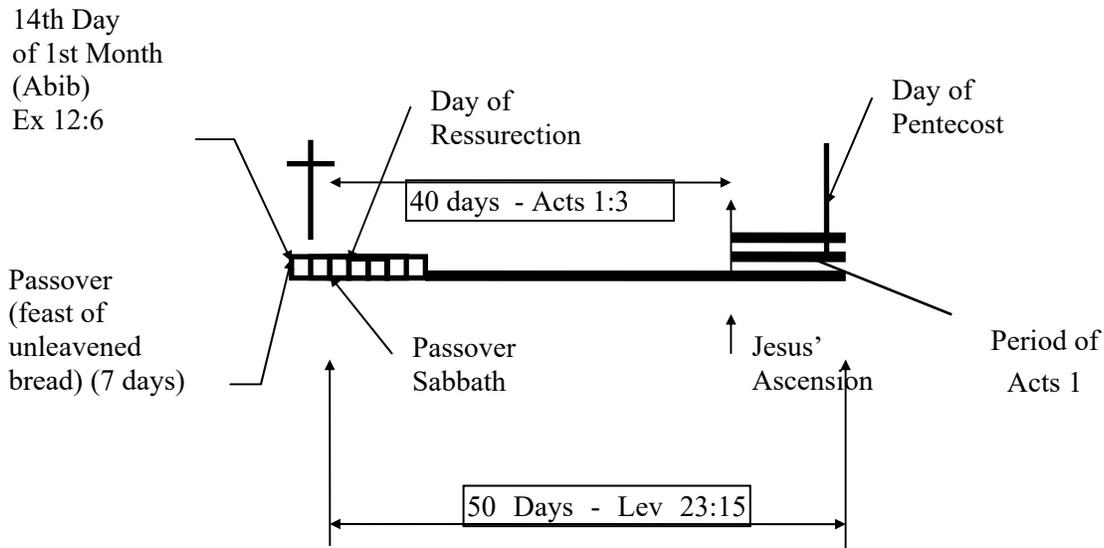

Acts is often referred to as a “book of conversions”. Throughout the book, conversion after conversion occurs, and we can discern what God wants us to do in response to the gospel.

Some other themes that run through the book are the presence and use of the spiritual gifts, the establishment of God’s kingdom, and the place of Gentiles within God’s family.

The major players

The apostle Peter features for most of the first half of the book (through chapter 12). The second half deals with the work of the apostle Paul (chapters 13 through 28). There are many other players, but the book can be divided as dealing with these two people as the lead.

Chapter 1 – Jerusalem AD 33

The period of Acts chapter 1

In chapter 1, Luke picks up with the ascension of Jesus, and a brief conversation that He had with the apostles beforehand, during which Jesus re-iterates the promise that the Holy Spirit would come to the apostles:

“...after giving instructions through the Holy Spirit to the apostles he had chosen. ³ After his suffering, he showed himself to these men and gave many convincing proofs that he was alive. He appeared to them over a period of forty days and spoke about the kingdom of God. ⁴ On one occasion, while he was eating with them, he gave them this command: "Do not leave Jerusalem, but wait for the gift my Father promised, which you have heard me speak about. ⁵ For John baptized with water, but in a few days you will be baptized with the Holy Spirit

AC 1:6 So when they met together, they asked him, "Lord, are you at this time going to restore the kingdom to Israel?"

AC 1:7 He said to them: "It is not for you to know the times or dates the Father has set by his own authority. ⁸ But you will receive power when the Holy Spirit comes on you; and you will be my witnesses in Jerusalem, and in all Judea and Samaria, and to the ends of the earth..." (1:2-8 NIV –emphasis mine)

The promise was quite specific. It was promised to the apostles. Not to the general population of believers, nor to others. The promise is baptism (immersion) with the Holy Spirit, and was to occur "...not many days from now..." (1:5 NKJV), and comes to fruition on the day of Pentecost.

Judas Iscariot had killed himself after betraying Jesus, and his office (as an apostle) needed to be replaced. The qualifications for an apostle are briefly given, and Matthias is appointed and numbered with the other eleven.

Chapter 2 – Jerusalem AD 33

The events of chapter 2 follow on immediately from chapter 1, and describe the events of Pentecost. Josephus¹ tells of one Passover feast (around that time) where 256,500 lambs were sacrificed, and he estimates the number of people attending at 2,700,200 people. If we accept this number as typical, we see 2.5 million people come from all over the then-known world to see Jesus crucified (c/f Lk 24:18-20). These same people are about to witness God's power in the establishment of the church.

The Holy Spirit came to the apostles (for a further discussion on this, see my Acts study), and something like fire sat on each of them. A sound like a rushing mighty wind drew the attention of the crowd, and they could then see something going on with each of the apostles, and then hear them speak in languages that they had never learned!

Peter took the lead, and preached the first gospel sermon, that the things that were happening that day were the fulfilment of prophecy, and concerned Jesus who had been crucified just 7 weeks before, as many of them had seen.

Many of them were convinced that Jesus was in fact the very Messiah, and they asked Peter what they needed to do (Acts 2:47). His response was that they needed to repent and be baptised so that their sins could be forgiven (2:38), and the same day 3,000 of them obeyed the gospel (2:41).

From that time, we see the church spoken of as having been established "...and the Lord added to the church daily those who were being saved..." (2:47). This was not something that they just did on 'Sunday' but was an integral part of their lives, and we see them daily coming together and having fellowship and praying and praising God and sharing meals together.

Because these people had come from all over the world, after they became Christians in Jerusalem, they then faced a dilemma: How could they go home now? Soon, they began to run out of money, and they "reached the credit limit on their bankcard". This sets the scene for events that will follow in the next few chapters.

Chapter 3 – Jerusalem AD 33

In the early part of Acts (up to chapter 6) we see all of the miracles being done only by the apostles. On one particular day, Peter and John went to the Temple, and saw a man who was lame from birth and begged for money (there was no social security) to live on. This man had been there for years, and he would have been a familiar sight to the people who lived in Jerusalem.

They did not give him money, but they did heal him so that immediately he was able to rise up and walk. The people saw it and were astonished, which gave Peter the opportunity to preach another sermon.

- Why do you marvel at this?
- Jesus was glorified by God
- You delivered Him up
- You denied Him to Pilate – he wanted to let Him go
- You sought a murderer to be released instead
- You killed God’s chosen one
- God raised Him up again
- We (Peter and John) are witnesses of this

Chapter 4 – Jerusalem AD 33

Peter’s sermon is interrupted by the Jewish leaders, and they took them into custody. Peter and John are taken before the Sanhedrin, and they stand in the very place where Jesus had stood and been condemned to death only a few weeks before. Peter responds to them with his third sermon:

- This was a good deed that was done to the man (so what is the problem? Have we been arrested for doing good?)
- You are witnesses of this, and so are the people of Israel,
- We did this by the authority of Jesus:
 - Whom you crucified
 - Whom God raised from the dead (a challenge to the Sadducees’ doctrine)
- This man stands whole before you (consider the evidence)
- Jesus was the stone that YOU builders rejected (makes the condemnation of the OT Scriptures apply to them) (Ps 118:22; Is 28:16),
- God has made Him the head of the corner (c/f Eph 2:19-22),
- You have rejected God’s Messiah “no other name under heaven” (4:12)

Whilst the Sanhedrin did not like what Peter and John were doing or saying, they faced a problem because they could see that the man who was lame could now walk, and could not explain how this came to be. The sudden rise of the Christians were seen as a threat to the Jewish religion, so the Sanhedrin threatened them, commanded them not to speak and teach in the name of Jesus any more, and let them go (4:14-18). Peter’s response was that they needed to do what God said, not what the Jewish leaders said! (4:19-21).

The number of the disciples continued to grow, and the number of men came to be about 5,000 (4:4) which implies that the number excludes women and believing children. This would take the total number of the disciples to probably about 12,000.

The apostles performed miracles (4:30-31) and gave witness to the resurrection (4:33). The brethren shared whatever they had (remember that there were thousands of people from all over the world who had come for Passover and Pentecost, then became Christians, and had decided not to return home. They were running out of money and needed to be fed). The brethren sold whatever they had, including land and houses and brought the money to the apostles.

Chapter 5 – Jerusalem AD 33

Two people who had become Christians in Jerusalem were a man named Ananias and his wife Sapphira. They wanted to be seen to be like the rest of the brethren, and so they sold some land and brought the money to the apostles. But they lied about how much they got for the land and said that what they were giving was all the money they received for it. They lied to God, and He struck them down dead for their sin. This had a huge effect on the early church, and showed that God was not to be messed with!

The apostles continued to work miracles (5:12), which resulted in increasing numbers of people becoming Christians (5:14). This continued to raise the ire of the Jewish leaders, and so they arrested all of the apostles (5:17-18). However, God had them released by sending an angel to open the prison door, and said to them to go and stand and preach in the Temple. (5:19-20). The next day the Jewish leaders assembled the Sanhedrin to make a judgement against the apostles, but found them missing from the prison but teaching in the Temple. They were arrested and brought before the Sanhedrin. Now all of the apostles stood where Jesus stood. [Later, Paul will also stand there (22:30)].

Peter's response is that they needed to obey God, not the Jewish leaders (5:29). Peter then has the opportunity to preach another sermon:

- Would God have raised Him up if he was a guilty man? (No!)
- If he was innocent, then what you did was wrong!
- God has put Him in the supreme position (at His right hand),
- Through Jesus, Israel has repentance and forgiveness of sin,
- We can give eyewitness account of these things,
- The Holy Spirit also attests to this (they had seen and heard the action of the Holy Spirit with the Pentecost events, speaking in tongues, and the miracles – not the least of which was the lame man!)

The Sanhedrin were furious, and wanted to put the apostles to death (5:33). However Gamaliel, one of the greatest teachers of the Sanhedrin uttered wisely that if what they were teaching was from man, it would die out, but if it was from God then they could not stop it (5:34-39). They agreed with him and commanded the apostles (again) to stop teaching in the name of Jesus (5:40).

Chapter 6 – Jerusalem AD 33/34

The Jerusalem church had grown beyond measure, and feeding the enormous number of people who were staying in Jerusalem had become a massive task. A dispute arose, because the Christians of Greek origin (they were all Jews, but were proselytes who had become Jews) were missing out on a fair share of the food (6:1).

The apostles asked the church to make a selection of some deacons to look after the task, so that they could attend to their own work of teaching and preaching. The apostles then appointed the seven deacons, and confirmed the appointment by laying their hands on them (6:3-6).

This event (laying on of the apostles hands) is a turning point in Acts, and after this we see two of these men (Stephen and Philip) performing miracles (6:8; 8:6).

Some of the Jews (not Jewish Christians – but the Jews), rose up against Stephen, and brought him to the Sanhedrin (6:11-15).

Chapter 7 – Jerusalem AD 33/34

Stephen appears before the Sanhedrin, and begins his defence by giving a potted history of Israel. He is taking the Sanhedrin on a journey from a place that they are comfortable with (God's call to Abraham) to a place that they were very uncomfortable with (Christ was the fulfilment of God's promises to Abraham – and YOU KILLED HIM !!!) (7:51-53). The Sanhedrin revolted, and took Stephen out and had him stoned to death (7:54-60). A young Saul appears on the scene, and he appears to have returned to Jerusalem about a year after the beginnings of the church (7:58). It is possible (even probable) that he returned because of what he had heard about the rise of Christianity. He had previously studied under Gamaliel, but would have been absent from Jerusalem for about 5 years. [See my Acts series “Study 12–Paul's Early Life” for further details]

Chapter 8 – Jerusalem, Judea, Samaria AD 33/34

Saul becomes an important player in the scene, and he was so irate at the rise of Christianity because he thought that it was against God's will, that he himself went to the High Priest to ask for authority to round up the Christians and bring them to Jerusalem for punishment (Acts 26:9-11). Saul's persecution marks another turning point in Acts, because it causes the Christians to move away from Jerusalem. This first dispersion is to regional Judea and Samaria (8:1), and everywhere they went they preached the word (8:4).

Philip (one of the deacons) went to the city of Samaria, and we soon see the church established there (8:6). When Philip worked miracles, the people listened to what he had to say (8:6), which shows the purpose of the miracles. Although Philip was able to work miracles, he could not pass that ability on to other people, and as soon as the brethren in Jerusalem heard that the church had been established in Samaria they sent two apostles, Peter and John, down there (8:14). When they came, they laid their hands on some of the brethren, and the miraculous measure of the Holy Spirit (the ability to work miracles, speak in tongues, and other gifts) came upon those who received it (8:15-17). We see here that it was the apostles alone who had the ability to pass on the miraculous spiritual gifts. Whilst Philip had received the gifts, he couldn't pass them on to others.

Philip was told to go the road to Gaza. There he met an official from Ethiopia who had come to worship in Jerusalem and was returning home. It is probable that he had come to Jerusalem for one of the three great pilgrimage festivals. If so, then this would place the time at the Feast of Tabernacles in AD 33 (October), or more likely Passover / Pentecost in AD 34 (March / May).

He was reading Isaiah 53, but didn't understand it. Philip explained to him that it was a passage about Jesus who was crucified and rose again. He must have explained how the church began in Jerusalem, and how the 3,000 were baptised on the day of Pentecost. The Ethiopian asked why he couldn't be baptised, and Philip explained that he could if he believed that Jesus was the Christ the Son of God (8:26-37). We then see a description of Philip baptising the Ethiopian “...and they both went down into the water, both Philip and the eunuch, and he baptised him...” (8:38). As the Ethiopian returned home, we see the gospel going beyond the regions of Judea and Samaria, and for the first time going to another continent (Africa). Philip continues his work until he arrives in Caesarea, where he will appear again about 20 years later (21:8).
